The UAE: Humanitarian Assistance During the COVID-19 Pandemic

UAE Novel Coronavirus (COVID-19) Humanitarian Assistance

Even as it takes aggressive action at home to fight the spread of the COVID-19 virus, the UAE is helping other countries respond to the pandemic. The UAE has delivered critical medical supplies, made UAE-owned facilities located abroad available to local governments, supplied donations to local initiatives, and assisted in the repatriation of foreign nationals.

To date, the UAE has responded to the COVID-19 crisis by providing over 1,277 metric tons of aid to 107 countries in need, supporting more than 1 million medical professionals in the process.

The UAE business community is supporting these urgent efforts. For example, both Etihad Airways and Emirates are bolstering their fleets of freighters to keep critical commercial goods like pharmaceuticals and medical devices moving and to assist in the delivery of international humanitarian relief assistance overseas.

United States

In May, Mubadala and its aerospace manufacturing subsidiary Strata announced a partnership with American company Honeywell to set up a new production line for N95 face masks at Strata’s Al Ain facility. The production line will produce 90,000 masks per week and fill critical needs for medical staff in the UAE and beyond.

On April 23, the White House announced that the UAE will donate coronavirus test kits to the US. “The President and the Crown Prince discussed cooperation in the fight against the coronavirus, including the donation of coronavirus test kits from the United Arab Emirates to the United States,” said the readout of a call between President Trump and Sheikh Mohamed bin Zayed.

One of the largest mass COVID-19 testing sites opened in Las Vegas with help from a donation of more than 200,000 test kits from the UAE. The Nevada COVID-19 task force partnered with the UAE and G42, a technology company based in Abu Dhabi to help University Medical Center develop the high-volume testing site and laboratory.

The UAE government and national airlines have worked with the US Mission to the UAE to repatriate a total of 733 American citizens back to the US. Additionally, Yousef Al Otaiba, the UAE Ambassador to the US, met with Secretary of State Mike Pompeo and conveyed a message of support and solidarity from UAE Foreign Minister Sheikh Abdullah.

Ambassador Al Otaiba and his wife Abeer were initial donors to Children’s National Hospital, which launched DC’s first drive-up/walk-up COVID-19 testing location for children and young patients. The Ambassador and his wife provided charitable support to Chef Jose Andres’ World Central Kitchen, which is distributing 50,000 packaged fresh meals to communities in need. Ambassador Al Otaiba is also supporting Feed the Fight, an organization distributing meals to health care workers and first responders, and Good Food Markets, which is providing groceries to Washington, DC residents in need.

Several Emirati doctors have remained at their positions in US hospitals and medical institutions across the country to support and work alongside their American counterparts in the fight against COVID-19. Dr. Ajlan Al Zaki, originally from Abu Dhabi, is an internal medicine resident at Stanford Health Care, where he is treating COVID-19 patients.

World Health Organization (WHO)

The UAE has donated $10 million worth of COVID-19 testing kits, enough for 500,000 people, to the WHO. The Dubai International Humanitarian City (IHC) houses the WHO Operations Supply and Logistics Hub, a facility that is instrumental in supplying countries with required medical supplies and protective equipment.

The IHC has facilitated the distribution of over 85% of the World Health Organization’s ‘Global Medical Response in the Fight Against COVID-19,’ including much needed medical supplies, such as masks, gloves and surgical gowns. Dr. Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus, Director-General of WHO, has publicly expressed his appreciation for the UAE’s international humanitarian response to the pandemic.

World Food Program (WFP)

The UAE, in partnership with the WFP, launched an international ‘air bridge’ operation that will provide a lifeline of essential health and humanitarian supplies to nations around the world grappling with the impact of COVID-19. The UAE has dedicated a fleet of three aircraft to enable the movement of life-saving cargo and personnel where they are needed most until the end of the year. On May 28, one of the planes delivered parts of a field hospital to Ghana in support of a UN mission to protect aid workers in West Africa. The UAE also helped to transport parts of a field hospital from Norway to Ethiopia.

“WFP has been working tirelessly to set up the logistics backbone for the global COVID-19 effort,” said David Beasley, Executive Director of the UN World Food Program. “This partnership with the UAE will expand our capacity and support health and humanitarian organizations as we rally together to limit the spread of the virus and its devastating effects.”
On April 26, Sheikh Mohamed Bin Zayed spoke with David Beasley to discuss ways of accelerating coordination in getting assistance to those affected by the COVID-19 pandemic. Sheikh Mohamed assured Beasley of the UAE’s readiness to support WFP’s efforts and help implement its initiatives. Beasley thanked the UAE for its support.

Kuwait #UAE sending supplies expressing solidarity with #Iran. Wish more #GCC emulate them. Such behaviors help create goodwill & more importantly reinforce perception this is one neighborhood that must be shared by all.

For a 2nd time in a week, the #UAE sends medical aid to #Iran. On the weekend, FM Abdullah bin Zayed and FM Zarif spoke on the phone to discuss Iran's coronavirus outbreak. A significant, and dare I say, quite touching development.
